Armstrong County Commissioners signed a proclamation at the February 1, 2011 Public Meeting that proclaims Armstrong County as a part of Steelers Nation. The Commissioners expressed their support for the Black and Gold as they prepare to compete on February 6th at the Superbowl against the Greenbay Packers. They described with pride the recognition of Armstrong County's location in Western Pennsylvania as the heartland of Steelers' territory. As stated in the proclamation: "From our rivers and our highways all roads lead to Heinz Field and our team the Pittsburgh Steelers". The meeting came to a close with an enthusiastic "Go Steelers"!

Armstrong County Commissioners Rich Fink, Patty Kirkpatrick and Jim Scahill display the proclamation and the terrible towel!
