Mr. Scahill then commended Ms. Dragan for her effort and diligence in obtaining the grant money which is used for improvements to the facility.

Mr. Scahill then spoke about his experience with the Wounded Warrior Walk. While he was unable to join in the actual walk, he assisted by cooking meals, maintaining the safety of the walkers and coordinating traffic. The goal for the Wounded Warrior's project is to raise awareness of the wounded service men and women that return home and need assistance in readjusting to civilian life. The walk raised approximately one-hundred thousand dollars for the project.

Mr. Fink reiterated Mr. Scahill's comments about Ms. Dragan and the Health Center. He also commented on how well the county department heads and staff work with the Board of Commissioners to accomplish the goal of serving the needs of Armstrong County residents.

Ms. Kirkpatrick shared details of an article that she recently read in Time magazine regarding the recession and its impact on local services, placing many of them in jeopardy. The article stated that the organizations affected by the financial crisis have been forced to adapt and in many cases reduce services.

Ms. Kirkpatrick offered praise for the County's Information Technology department on their work in bringing the latest technological advances to the County. One example of the advancements is the ability for the commissioners to participate in critical meetings without the expense of travel and time away from the office.
